U.N. to stay on Golan Heights

UNITED NATIONS, May 19 (R). — Syria and Israel have agreed to a six-month extension of the mandate of the U.N. peace-keeping force in the Golan Heights, until Nov. 30, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said today. He recommended the Security Council approve the extension, saying the present quiet in the sector was precarious. "The government of the Syrian Arab Republic has given its assent to the proposed extension. The government of Israel has also expressed its agreement," Dr. Waldheim said in an eight-page report. Austrian, Canadian, Iranian and Polish contingents, along with 85 officers detailed from the U.N. Truce Supervision Organisation (UNTSO), comprise the U.N. force.

Palestine body to hold meeting

DAMASCUS, May 19 (R). — Middle East developments, including Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative with Israel, will be discussed at a meeting here tomorrow night of the Palestine Central Council (PCC). The council acts as liaison between the Executive Committee of the Palestine Liberation Organisation and the Palestine National Council (PNC). Tomorrow's meeting will be attended by PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat and PNC Speaker Khaled Al Fahoum. Mr. Al Fahoum said the PCC would discuss the date and venue for a PNC meeting. It will review Middle East developments, including the continued Egyptian peace initiative, the Israeli occupation of south Lebanon, and closer coordination with Arab states opposed to that move.

Rome police uncover documents at vacant Red Brigades hideout

ROME, May 19 (R). — Police said today they had found a secret hideout of the Red Brigades killers of ex-Premier Aldo Moro containing five diaries with names, addresses and phone numbers. They gave no other details.

Police also revealed that they thought the far-left violent extremists had three units in their so-called "Roman Column" — at the university, the telephone company and the south of the city.

Discovery of the hideout was revealed following the announcement yesterday by Rome police chief Emanuele de Francesco that ten people, including at least two women, had been arrested and two Red Brigades bases discovered. "Other arrests were made Tuesday last night."

One base was a suburban stinking press equipped with an electric typewriter which police sources said could have been used to produce the Red Brigades communiqués issued during the Moro kidnapping.

They also said a flat rented by the family of the printing press owner, Enrico Triaca, now under interrogation at police headquarters, but found no incriminating material, police sources said.

Police gave no further information about the new hideout except to say its owner, Gabriella Mariani, bought it recently by paying cash and lived here with a bearded man in his 30s known locally as "the professor," who had disappeared.

Investigators checking the flat found an electric typewriter, a printing press, a "Golfball" rotating typeheads in the italic

Zaire rebels kill hostages as Franco-Belgian troops move in PARIS, May 19 (R). — Two waves of French para-troopers have been dropped into the southern Zaire town of Kolwezi to rescue some 3,000 whites trapped there by rebels, French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing said in a television interview tonight. He said the para-troopers had captured a technical school in the centre of the copper mining town and found 20 hostages. And as the French leader finished his interview, the official Zaire news agency AZAP reported from Kinshasa that the French para-troopers had found the bodies of 44 Europeans in Kolwezi. The agency said they had been shot by the rebels this morning.

Mr. Giscard d'Estaing had told viewers: "I have just been informed that the para-troopers have been able to occupy a technical school in the centre of the town in which they found 20 hostages."

He gave no further details about the nationality or condition of the hostages.

The AZAP report also did not specify the identities of the Europeans killed this morning and no further details were available.

Meanwhile, heavy clashes were reported in Kolwezi today after the 600 French para-troopers staged a lightning drop on the outskirts of the besieged town.

Some Western diplomats in Kinshasa had said they feared that rebels who invaded Kolwezi last week would react to the drop with reprisals against the white foreigners trapped in the area of the fighting.

AZAP earlier said it had intercepted a message from rebel leader Nathaniel M'bumba ordering the killing of the whites and a retreat into Angola, from where the invasion of copper-rich Shaba Province was launched.

AZAP said the rebels attacked the French para-troops with armoured cars as the Foreign Legionnaires landed at a disused airfield on the outskirts of the copper-mining centre. It quoted military sources as saying there were no French casualties.

The Legionnaires were part of a 2,700-strong French-Belgian para-troop force flown to Zaire to rescue the foreigners.

But diplomatic sources said the speed of the French strike had precipitated a division with Belgium over how the crisis should be handled.

AZAP reported that a motorised column of black Cubans fled as the French para-troops began pushing towards Kolwezi. But there was no independent confirmation of this report.

The official agency said a first drop of 400 Legionnaires went in at 14:10 GMT. Two hundred more men followed in a second wave, according to diplomatic sources.

AZAP reported that the para-troops knocked out one rebel armoured car in fighting that turned into a "serious engagement."

AZAP said the Legionnaires, whose dropping point was on

UNIFIL eyes accord with Palestinians

BEIRUT, May 19 (Agencies). — The United Nations launched a new bid today to work out a peaceful coexistence formula between its forces and Palestinian guerrillas in south Lebanon.

Spearheading the attempt was Roberto Guyer, of Argentina, senior political adviser to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, who flew into Beirut for talks with Lebanese and Palestinian leaders.

Top field commanders of U.N. peace-keeping operations in the Middle East flew into the Lebanese capital simultaneously to help Dr. Waldheim's emissary.

Among them were Finnish Lt.-Gen. Ensis Sillanvuo, Supreme Coordinator of U.N. Forces in the Middle East, and Ghanaian Maj.-Gen. Emmanuel Erskine, Commander of the U.N. Interim Forces in Lebanon (UNIFIL).

Mr. Guyer was expected to deliver a message from Dr. Waldheim to Lebanese President Elias Sarkis tomorrow and advisers were reported engaged in preparing a meeting with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat.

U.N. sources said the effort was aimed at averting a confrontation between the now 4,500-strong UNIFIL and guerrillas and their leftist Lebanese allies.

Gen. Erskine has made it plain UNIFIL was duty-bound to prevent the guerrillas and leftists from returning to south Lebanese areas vacated by invading Israeli forces.

Palestinian and Lebanese leftists insisted the U.N. mission was only to supervise a speedy Israeli withdrawal from the 800 square kilometres it occupied in south Lebanon last March.

They say UNIFIL has no right to prevent them from returning to evacuated areas, which Israel wants to preserve as a guerrilla-free security belt along its northern border.

Meanwhile, U.N. sources in Tyre said today that about 15 Palestinian commandos have infiltrated United Nations lines and are now in the Qleieh area, south of Tyre.

But they said the guerrilla group represented no threat either in number or equipment. They were carrying personal arms.

French troops are setting up new observation towers along the road to Qleieh near the coast.

Residents of Qleieh said an Israeli force consisting of three armoured personnel carriers entered the village last night and warned the village headman against the entrance of guerrillas there. He was asked to report any movement of the commandos into the village.

the northern outskirts of Kolwezi, had not yet linked up with Zaire government forces to the south. It added that a second phase of the operation was being planned.

Official sources said President Mobutu Sese Seko was trying to catch the rebels in a pincer between his forces and the French.

Other diplomatic sources in Kinshasa said they believed the para-troops were under orders to liquidate the rebel force, which Zaire claims came from Angola with Cuban, Libyan and Algerian backing.

AZAP said later that four rebels captured in the fighting had admitted under interrogation that Cubans were in Kolwezi until this morning.

Meanwhile, the White House announced in Washington today that the United States is sending 18 military transport planes to deliver supplies to the French and Belgian forces attempting to rescue foreign nationals in Zaire.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said American crews would fly the big C-141 military transports but would not engage in combat and would not fly into combat areas.

He said the planes would deliver communications and other equipment, vehicles and ammunition to the Belgian and French troops.

Will U.S. allow Israeli Kfir sales to "compensate" for Mideast arms deal?

TEL AVIV, May 19 (AP). — Prime Minister Menachem Begin visited Israel's jet-fighter production line last night as news reports indicated Israel would renew its drive to export Kfir warplanes.

While repeating that Israel wanted peace with its neighbours, Mr. Begin praised the 20,000 workers at Israel Aircraft Industries plants and told them: "What you produce here is a deterrent."

Israel expects some "compensation" for the sale of advance F-16s to Saudi Arabia, according to reports on Israel Radio and in Israeli newspapers.

A source close to Mr. Begin confirmed Israel's interest in selling the supersonic Kfirs to Taiwan. The U.S. Embassy here, however, has no record of an Israeli application for U.S. permission to sell the plane, which is required since the Kfir has an American-designed General Electric engine.

The Nationalist Chinese Defence Ministry in Taipei denied today that Taiwan has ever had any plans to purchase warplanes from Israel.

Commenting on the recent news reports saying the U.S. government might give the green light for Israel to sell 50 Kfir combat planes to Taiwan, Gen. Wang Yeh-kai, the ministry's spokesman, said: "We firmly declare, my government has never had any plans to purchase warplanes from Israel."

Last year the Carter administration refused permission for a $150 million sale of 24 Kfirs to Ecuador.

A report in the Israeli Maariv newspaper said Mr. Begin was expected to tell his cabinet on Sunday that Israel expected, as compensation for the U.S. warplane package, to be allowed to sell $500 million worth of Kfirs to Taiwan. In addition Israel wanted more than the 75 F-16s included in the package, according to the report.

The Kfir flies at 2.3 times the speed of sound and basically is a marriage of the French Mirage 5 airframe with the U.S. J-97 General Electric engine.

Although the Israel aircraft industry has yet to crack the export market with the Kfir, it claims $100 million in 1977 exports of Westwind executive jets, Arava transports, missiles, patrol boats and other weaponry.

Alleged N. Yemen rebel leader sacked

SAN'A, May 19 (R). — North Yemen's President Ahmad Hussein Al Ghashmi last night replaced Maj. Abdullah Abdul 'Alem as commander of the para-troops force. Maj. Abdul 'Alem, a member of the three-man Command Council which was dissolved last month, was reported to have fallen out with the president. Maj. Abdullah Mohammad Saif was named as the new para-troops commander.airo and Kuwaiti newspaper reports — denied by North Yemeni Embassies in both the capitals — had alleged that Maj. Abdul 'Alem had taken to the southern hills at the head of 5,000 rebel troops.

Israeli army brutality under probe

TEL AVIV, May 19 (AP). — Four Israeli army training officers have received jail sentences for harsh treatment of Orthodox Jewish recruits, press reports said today. The misconduct occurred at an Armoured Corps training base for Orthodox Jews, according to articles in the Hebrew and English language press. The articles were based on an expose in the Shearim newspaper of the Orthodox Pundit Agudat Israel political party. An army spokesman said to official comment on the brutality allegations except to say investigations were under way. The report described an instance where a young soldier killed himself after being forced to carry a heavy water can on a long march, even though he complained he was ill and unable to continue.

Dominican opposition threatens strike

SANTO DOMINGO, May 19 (R). — The opposition party of presidential candidate Antonio Guzman has threatened to call a general strike unless it is proclaimed the winner of Tuesday's election in the Dominican Republic. It claims that it had a lead of more than two to one over conservative incumbent President Joaquin Balaguer when the army intervened on Wednesday to suspend the vote count. The count has since resumed, but the Electoral Committee supervising it said no results would be announced until the count was complete, which might take two weeks or more.

Will Mrs. Thatcher settle in Israel?

LONDON, May 19 (R). — British opposition leader Margaret Thatcher last night praised Israel as "one of the few democracies in the modern world." She said: "There is no better system to enable men and women to live in their own way and engage in occupations as they wish." Mrs. Thatcher was speaking at an Anglo-Israeli Friendship League dinner held to celebrate Israel's 30th anniversary. "The problem and challenge with democracy today — whether it is here or in Israel — is in the struggle to keep the moral code alive," Mrs. Thatcher added that Israel was in another struggle and Israelis perhaps knew better than most the value of liberty. "The greatest prize both for Israel and the whole of the free world will be the day when Israel can live behind universally accepted and acknowledged boundaries to peace and security," she said. "May that day not be long in coming."

Djibouti to spark new African war?

LONDON, May 19 (AP). — Ethiopia's marxist military ruler Col. Mengistu Haile-Mariam has warned of the possibility of another confrontation with his East African neighbour Somalia, Addis Ababa Radio reported last night.

The radio broadcast from the Ethiopian capital, monitored here, quoted Col. Mengistu as saying: "Unless the reactionary government of Somalia changes its reactionary intentions against Djibouti and unless it refrains from the activities it is presently conducting, we will challenge it to another confrontation." Djibouti, a tiny 9,000-sq. mile enclave with a population of 81,000, is strategically situated at the southern end of the Red Sea. It is flanked to the south and west by Ethiopia and to the east by Somalia. In his speech in Dire Dawa Col. Mengistu accused Somali President Mohammad Siad Barre of deploying Somali troops towards Djibouti "and even infiltrating them there."

Sunday: Egyptians will vote for new curbs on political dissension

CAIRO, May 19 (R). — Egyptian voters are expected to give massive support to measures restricting political opposition and disciplining the press in a referendum next Sunday ordered by President Anwar Sadat.

In a previous referendum following bloody food riots in January last year, the country's ten million or so voters came out 99.42 per cent in favour of tough law-and-order measures.

Egyptian Information Minister Abdul Mun'em Savi said two days ago the aim of the referendum was to deepen freedom and democracy but that discipline was needed. He made it clear he expected a big "yes" vote. "We believe in our people," he said.

The proposed clampdown follows increasingly sharp attacks in the opposition press on the policies of President Sadat's government and acrimonious exchanges between opposition deputies and ministers.

A deputy of the conservative New Wafd Party recently stood up in the People's Assembly (parliament) during a stormy debate on food supplies and shouted "down with Sadat". He was subsequently dismissed.

Following elections in 1976

President Sadat began a tentative experiment with democracy allowing the formation of opposition parties.

But it is from two of these, the leftist Unionist Progressive Party and the New Wafd, that the brunt of the criticism has come. This has included veiled allusions to corruption and nepotism.

The referendum seeks to bar from political life all prominent politicians active during the monarchy before the 1952 Revolution except members of the old Nationalist and Socialist Parties. They are considered to have been free of corruption during that period.

Others affected are pro-Moscow figures who opposed President Sadat when he came to power in 1970 and were subsequently tried for corrupting political life and anybody else convicted of political crimes.

It also seeks to bar Communists from all official walks of life and from writing in the press. They would be excluded from posts in the government, state industries, trade unions, professional organisations and the media.

Clampdown on press

On the press, the proposed measures would declare guilty of "corruption of political life"

Habash calls for popular war against Israel

BEIRUT, May 19 (AP). — Dr. George Habash, leader of the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), last night urged that the three million Palestinians in the Arab World should be "mobilised for an all-out popular war" against Israel.

"This should be our way of showing gratitude to our martyrs," said Dr. Habash in a speech commemorating the death of his associate, Dr. Wad' Haddad, who died of blood cancer 40 days ago.

"My brother Wad' was a hero, not a terrorist or a criminal," Dr. Habash said, drawing a standing ovation from an estimated 5,000 Palestinian and Lebanese youths. "The real criminals, the real terrorists are those who usurped our homeland, rendered us homeless, chased us around the Middle East and have been trying to annihilate us."

Dr. Haddad was head of the PFLP Foreign Operations Bureau, a special arm of the guerrilla group responsible for jetliner hijacking and other operations against Israel and its backers.

Dr. Haddad and Dr. Habash were classmates at the American University of Beirut's Faculty of Medicine.

Dr. Habash also lauded Palestinian guerrillas for "putting up a tough and heroic fight" against the Israeli invasion of south Lebanon last March.

Dr. Habash attacked Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and condemned his trip to Israel as "a sellout of the Palestinian case."

"Arab solidarity is nonexistent," Dr. Habash said. "And even the so-called standfast and confrontation powers are not really operating in close solidarity. Even the Palestinian commando groups are not observing any genuine solidarity."

He suggested offering a "new covenant" to all Palestinians in an open referendum — to "stand fast against Lebanese (rightist) isolationists and the Israelis, or face annihilation."

"Our women are fertile, and they will beget enough children that Israel will really be scared of our population growth," said Dr. Habash, drawing applause from the audience that jammed the Gamal Abdul Nasser Auditorium inside the Arab University of Beirut.

Dr. Haddad's widow took the rostrum and eulogised her husband as a "kind-hearted man but a dedicated revolutionary."

Aramco contributes to UNRWA'S 1978/79 educational programme

BEIRUT, May 19 — The Arabian American Oil Company (Aramco) of Dhahran, Saudi Arabia has contributed $18,000 toward the 1978/79 educational programme of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA). It was announced in Beirut this week.

The funds will be used by UNRWA for university scholarships, vocational training, and elementary schooling of Palestine refugee youth and children. More than half of UNRWA's $139.8 million budget in 1978 is earmarked for educational programmes. Some 320,000 refugee children attend UNRWA's 610 elementary and preparatory schools in Jordan, Lebanon, the Syrian Arab Republic and the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. Furthermore, about 4,400 young refugee men and women attend UNRWA's vocational training institutes, and in 1978 UNRWA granted 320 university scholarships to refugee students.

CONGRATULATIONS

Will ya look at that tomato, Hank?

Now we hear from Israeli officials that a series of six or more urban centres with a population of up to 160,000 Jewish settlers will be built around Jerusalem as a means of putting up a "security screen" around the Holy City. It is interesting that this latest Israeli plan has been worked out by both the security planning committee and the agriculture ministry, a rather novel combination mirroring the Zionist accomplishment of what has heretofore been an impossible deed — mixing cucumbers with cluster bombs.

We presume that the Israelis will take American senators on tours of the new settlements in the occupied West Bank and proudly show them how American aid has helped the Israelis make the desert bloom? No doubt, we shall also have announcements of how Israeli scientists tolling in the inhospitable terrain of the occupied territories have devised new strains of tomato plants that have the peculiar ability to emit poisonous darts whenever an Arab is sighted within a three-kilometre radius. And, the American senators will be told, this new Israeli contribution to humanity will be perfect to sell to the Egyptians to be used as part of the Sinai early warning stations, and we shall no doubt then have some major American banks joining in on a three-day deal by which these new tomatoes will be mass produced in a free-zone somewhere especially for export all over the world, and the Israelis and the American senators will then say that not only have they made the desert bloom, but they have also contributed to the economic development of the Middle East. On top of this, we shall be told that the tomatoes are of both sexes, so that Israel and the American senators who are its good friends will be able to add to their list of accomplishments the spreading of democracy and equal opportunity throughout the Third World.

If that sounds rather ridiculous, it is no more ridiculous than the attitude of the Western world that reflects a great deal of empty talk about how the Israeli settlements are illegal and an obstacle to peace. The more talk we hear from the West that provides Israel with the backing to go ahead unhindered with its settlements, the more the Israelis charge ahead with their long-term plans of dearabising the West Bank and Gaza.

Jordanian expounds brand new theory correlating life-styles with security

By a Jordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN, May 17 (JT) — A Jordanian student of Bedouin culture has come up with an intriguing theory that there is a direct correlation between styles of clothing and dwelling in each society and its state of security and need for protection.

Maj. Ahmad Oweidi Abbadi, a police officer and an M.A. graduate of the Higher Islamic Studies Institute in Cairo, has had portions of his "Theory of Security and Protection" published in the Kuwaiti newspaper Al Rai' Al 'Am and quoted by the French News Agency (AFP). It is to be published in a book entitled Bedouin Rites.

Major Abbadi, the author of three books to date, who leaves no doubt that he means his theory to be a comprehensive and general explanation of human behaviour, argues that the more secure a society, the more open its life (and dress and dwelling) style. He argues that wide and open windows, accessible dwellings and revealing clothes belong to a well-protected society and vice-versa.

His theory incidentally does not refer to protection against human enemies alone, but extends to natural enemies and the environment as well, including the weather.

To illustrate his point, the author points out that Bedouin in clothing, specially for women, hides a great deal; houses built by Bedouins turned sedentary tend to have small windows opening to the outside, this affords a measure of security in a society where there is no law enforcement agency and hence little security as well as protection against public enemy number one in the desert: the weather.

Maj. Abbadi, who is in charge of information services for the Directorate of Public Security, goes on to draw intriguing visual parallels between the face masks worn by Bedouin women and the facades of houses built in the desert, where the small apertures for windows imitate the eye holes in the masks worn by women; the face masks concealing the beauty of the women from possible abductors while the houses afford little access to potential enemies.

The author, a life-long student of desert customs and traditions, is a true son of the desert himself. He often generalises what he observes among desert folk to the rest of humanity. Although a great deal of what he has to say is readily acceptable, he regards the desert as a pure, abstract environment so that the stark facts about life in the desert acquire a universal human dimension.

He generalises many of the truths he discovers with his discerning eye for pattern and detail to the rest of mankind; this is where there is room for controversy. His expose is rich with selected examples from history. He explains the presence of such persecuted minorities as Lebanon's Maronites and Druze, (who spill over into neighbouring Syria), in mountain strongholds as a bid to set oneself up in a protected environment. He will get on argument there.

The author of course does not only talk about desert clothes and dwellings. He is rich with examples about castles with moats and Medieval arm-our. One very interesting example he gives is about the Tuaregs in north Africa, who are notorious nomadic raiders.

It seems that among the Tuaregs women go about with bare faces while the men wear face masks. Maj. Abbadi, who claims to be the first to offer an explanation for this phenomenon, says that unlike their counterparts in the Middle East, Tuareg women enjoy a great degree of freedom; they are able to work and mix with men and even have a say in running the affairs of the tribe; most important, they are afforded respect and protection by tribal custom and are more secure from threat than their menfolk.

The men, by contrast, are immediately held accountable and punishable for the slightest action, hence they prefer to conceal their identity. He adds, of course, that it is the men who roam the desert, and therefore need protection from the wind and sun. They also prefer not to be recognised by roaming enemies that may chance upon them, nor do they want to publicise their identities while carrying out raids themselves.

Maj. Abbadi's theory also allows him to explore realms of the spirit -- or psyche if you prefer. He classifies recourse to religion as a way of building a castle of meaningfulness and psychological security, moat and all, around oneself -- although make no mistake about it, the man is religious and believes in the universal applicability of Islam, the religion that was born in the desert.

ILO mission reports

Job level in Israeli-occupied territories has stagnated

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 19 (AP). — Arabs living in Israeli-occupied territories but working in Israel itself are being refused permission to join trade unions, the International Labour Organisation (ILO) said yesterday, while the level of employment in the occupied areas has stagnated. The findings are part of an ILO report on the organisation's first mission to the Middle East to investigate workers' rights in the occupied territories.

Issued in advance of next month's annual ILO conference, the report said the mission was afforded "every facility" by the Israeli civil and military authorities to carry out its mandate last month.

But it called on the Israeli authorities to respect "the cultural identity of the (Arab) workers" and to continue to guarantee them "equality of treatment as regards remuneration, conditions of work and social benefits."

The moderately-worded report said that Arabs who work in Israel were not being allowed "to enjoy the protection of the trade unions which exist in the territories where they live."

The report also said the mission had been informed of "a number of arrests" of trade union leaders and of others "expelled from the (occupied) territories." Most of those arrested, it added, had since been released, according to evidence the three-man team received from the Israeli authorities.

The ILO mission, which spent ten days in the Middle East last month, was headed by Nicolas Valicors, Greek assistant director-general of the organisation. It visited employers, workers and local mayors in the West Bank, Gaza Strip, Golan and Sinai areas.

The mission's report said the ten-day probe included "private talks with the persons the mission wanted to meet," without the presence of Israeli officials.

Arab workers, it said, had complained of being given less well-paid jobs than their Israeli counterparts, of being less protected "when decisions are taken regarding dismissals" of the high level of income tax imposed on them, and of the long distances they claimed they are forced to travel to work.

The report warned that the level of employment in the occupied territories had "stagnated" and, more recently, even dropped. The increase of employment in Israel may have taken place "to the detriment" of employment in these territories, it said, adding there was "a definite need for an active investment and employment policy" in the occupied areas.

It also warned that the "persistent slowing down" of the Israeli economy -- and in particular the building sector -- represented a "threat" to the employment of the workers from the territories. Arab workers, it said, represented about 25 per cent of the total labour force in Israel's building sector.

The ten-day mission followed a pledge by ILO Director-General Francis Blanchard last June that "all available ILO methods" would be applied to help ensure that the conditions of the workers concerned "... are in keeping with the principles" of the organisation.

This assurance was in response to a 1974 resolution co-sponsored by four ILO member states urging the tripartite group to take action against Israeli discrimination of local Arab populations.

Kuwait, Iraq will build railway, link power grids

KUWAIT, May 19 (R). — Iraq and Kuwait yesterday agreed to build a railway between Basra and Kuwait and to link their two electric power grids as part of a series of agreements hailed here as the beginning of a new era of cooperation between the two neighbouring Gulf states.

A total of ten agreements were signed yesterday at the end of a four-day visit by a high-level Iraqi delegation led by Interior Minister Izzat Ibrahim, a member of Iraq's ruling Revolutionary Command Council.

Kuwaiti Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister, Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Sabah, who led his country's side at the talks, said the agreements constituted "an effective step on the road of constructive co-operation" between the two Arab countries.

The two countries, which have often stood on opposite sides within the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries, decided under the terms of one agreement to coordinate their policies in OPEC and within the parallel Organisation of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC).

The two countries also said they would seek common measures to face the decline in the value of the U.S. dollar and the current situation in the international market.

50-50 chance for oil price rise early next year, says Saudi oil minister

CHICAGO, May 19 (R). — Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmad Zaki Yamani said in an interview published today there was a 50-50 chance oil producing countries would raise oil prices early next year.

To an interview with the Chicago Tribune, he also said a series of small oil price rises over the next several years, rather than a sudden sharp rise sometime in the 1980's, would be best for the economies of Western nations. Sheikh Yamani noted that the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) had frozen oil prices for 1978, but said:

"I cannot predict right now what will happen by the end of this year. There is a possibility of an increase and there is the possibility of another freeze. I would give it a 50-50 chance."

The newspaper quoted him as saying: "Without a gradual boost in oil prices into the early 1980's, world economies would be faced with an inevitable sharp increase... and your economy will find it difficult to absorb."

He continued: "The alternative to a gradual increase would be a sudden shock that would result in a recession or even a depression in the mid-1980's."

Sheikh Yamani predicted the current world oil surplus would continue until the end of next year, followed by five

Guerrilla threats cost Lufthansa $40m in lost business last year

COLOGNE, West Germany, May 19 (R). — The West German airline Lufthansa said yesterday that guerrilla threats to blow up three of its aircraft had cost the company about 80 million marks ($40 million) last year. Management Board Chairman Herbert Culmann told a press conference that bookings fell sharply in the last two months of 1977 following threats from urban guerrillas. On the first ten months of business it looked as though the airline would at least equal the record 1976 profit of 166.3 million marks ($83 million), but in fact 1977 profit slumped to just $2.1 million marks ($41 million).

Last November the airline received a threat that three of its aircraft would be blown up in revenge for the deaths of Baader-Meinhof guerrilla leaders Andreas Baader, Gudrun Ensslin and Jan-Carl Raspe in a Stuttgart prison.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Two homers by Orioles' Decinces claim 5-3 victory over Blue Jays

NEW YORK, May 19 (AP). — Doug Decinces homered twice, driving in three runs, to help power the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays last night.

Decinces drove in two runs with a homer in the fourth to tie the score 2-2 and connected for his fifth homer of the season in the eighth. Decinces has eight RBI this season, all on homers.

Pat Kelly added a two-run double in the fifth, chasing Blue Jays pitcher Jim Clancy, 2-3.

Orioles pitcher Mike Flanagan, 4-3, gave up two runs in the first on a leadoff walk and consecutive singles by Roy Howell, Rico Carty and Otto Velez. The Blue Jays scored another in the eighth Howell's RBI single.

In another American League game, Mickey Rivers tripled in the eventual winning run in the seventh inning to help left-hander Roo Guldry gain his fifth win without a loss with a 5-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Bando's eighth-inning sacrifice fly scored Paul Molitor to lift Milwaukee to an 8-7 victory over the Detroit Tigers, who saw a four-game winning streak snapped. Detroit had tied the score with a five-run rally in the eighth, highlighted by Steve Kemp's three-run homer.

Juan Beniquez drove in four runs with four hits and catcher Jim Sundberg ran his consecutive game hitting streak to 17 with a fifth-inning single to lead the Texas Rangers to a 6-4 victory over the Oakland A's. Sundberg's streak is the longest in the A.L. this season and tied a club record.

Mike Cabbage, Butch Wynegar and Jose Morales each knocked in two runs and the Minnesota Twins held on to beat Kansas City 8-6. The Twins scored five runs in the third on a two-out rally keyed by a two-run single by Cabbage and Morales' two-run pinch-double.

In the National League, George Foster singled home the winning run in Cincinnati's three-run eighth inning and Fred Norman, 5-0, and Pedro Borbon combined for a three-hitter as Cincinnati downed Montreal 3-2. The Reds' Ken Griffey drove in two runs with a double in the eighth.

Pinch hitter Jerry Martin hit a three-run homer in the ninth inning and Jay Johnstone, subbing for the slumping Grez Luzinski, had four hits, one RBI and scored twice to power Philadelphia to an 8-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

Steve Henderson had four hits and drove home Lenny Randle, who scored five times, with the winning run in the tenth inning as the New York Mets downed the Atlanta Braves 8-7.

Sexy male
carpenter
bees even goforplanes

WASHINGTON, May 19 (R). — Anxious male carpenter bees, desperate for mates, have one rule -- if it has wings and flies, try to seduce it.

And that includes jet airplanes, according to a University biology professor who has spent two years studying the sexual habits of xylocopa, at 2.5 centimeters long, the largest known bees.

Dr. Edward Barrows of Georgetown University here said he found that male carpenter bees were so determined to find a mate that they mistook aircraft, birds and even puffins of puffins for females.

He said in his report that carpenter bees -- their name stems from their habit of burrowing deep into solid wood -- had been spotted chasing airplanes approaching Washington's national airport.

- The Free Zones Corporation announces that the Jordanian cabinet has approved the allocation of a 5,200-dunum plot of land in the Azraq-Zarqa-Mafraq triangle to be used as a free zone.
- The location will serve purposes of transit and re-exportation. The construction plan on the locality includes building large warehouses for commercial storage and cold stores for keeping materials that need refrigeration, permitting the construction of feasible export industries and leasing portions of the land for commercial and industrial purposes.
- In order that the Free Zones Corporation may be able to draw up the necessary assessment for the areas intended for lease and determine the size of storehouses and cold-storage plants, it requests that Jordanians, Arabs and foreigners who wish to deal with it should submit their applications containing as many details as possible to the following address: Ministry of Finance, Office of the Free Zones Corporation.
- It is requested that addresses of would-be dealers with the free zone at Zarqa should be clearly stated in their applications together with the post office box and telephone numbers. Applications by mail should be received not later than 16/7/1978.
- The corporation's office at the Finance Ministry is ready to answer any question and provide any required information.

Mohammad Dabbas,
Minister of Finance,
Head of the Administrative Council of the Free Zones Corporation.

Western diplomats believe big breakthrough in arms controls may come this year

By Mohsin Ali

LONDON, (R). — The biggest ever disarmament conference opens in New York next week with Western diplomats confident that this year could see real progress towards the control of nuclear weapons.

The forum for the gathering is the United Nations General Assembly. The special session starting May 23 is expected to be addressed by about 20 heads of government, including perhaps President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

A battle of words is inevitable during the five-week session as rival plans for disarmament are discussed, but Western diplomats believe that a big breakthrough in arms control could be achieved during 1978, designated U.N. disarmament year.

This could take the form of the conclusion of a second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT) between Washington and Moscow, a comprehensive nuclear test ban and cuts in NATO and Warsaw Pact forces in Central Europe.

Defence spending

World expenditure on defence is staggering. Former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt has calculated that more than $1 billion are spent daily on armaments in the world.

Western experts said one major task of the New York session would be to explore ways of reducing defence budgets.

They estimated that six per cent of the world's total production is devoted to military expenditure. Arms expenditure is double world spending on health and larger than its expenditure on education.

In three hours the world spends on defence the equivalent of a year's budget for U.N. peace-keeping operations.

The experts said 53 million people serve in armed forces or in jobs related to military activities. And half a million research scientists and engineers are engaged in military research and development.

Three-quarters of the world's military expenditure is accounted for by the developed world and nearly two-thirds by the United States and the Soviet Union.

These are the stark statistics that will face the delegates as they discuss the highly technical proposals of East and West and non-aligned groups.

Neutron bomb

President Brezhnev recently told West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who is expected to address the U.N. special session, that Moscow would demand that the highly controversial neutron bomb be banned.

The bomb through intense radiation would kill people but leave most buildings relatively unscathed. Moscow was planning to introduce a resolution at the session calling on the world to forbid such weapons.

The Soviet Bloc countries have mounted a big campaign aimed at outlawing the neutron warhead.

President Carter has postponed its production for the time being. But he said the final U.S. decision on whether to manufacture the weapon "will be influenced by the degree to which the Soviet Union shows restraint in its conventional and nuclear arms programmes."

Moscow's only immediate response to this was to say the Soviet Union too would renounce production of the neutron bomb.

The Warsaw Pact has a three-to-one superiority in tanks over NATO forces in Europe -- and the neutron weapon is tailor-made to smash any massed tank offensive.

East West bargaining

Moscow, however, has indicated that NATO would not be allowed to use the neutron bomb as a bargaining counter in the slow-moving East-West Vienna negotiations on mutual and balanced force reduction (MBFR) in Central Europe.

It ought simply be banned under a resolution of the special assembly on disarmament, Soviet spokesmen argued.

But Western powers are expected to resist this. Moreover, Western diplomats pointed out, General Assembly resolutions are not binding on member states.

French proposals

The New York session will also have before it proposals by French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. He is calling for an international system of space satellites to watch over world disarmament measures.

This novel French scheme for exploiting space technology to check implementation of arms limitation agreements is part of a French disarmament plan for the assembly session.

It offers a way around the problem of international on-site inspection, which for years has hampered East-West negotiations about effective controls for disarmament.

The Soviet Union has always refused to have foreign inspectors on its soil, alleging that the U.S. wanted to use them for spying.

The French proposals also call for a European conference on arms limitation to cover a vast region from the continent's Atlantic seaboard to the Ural mountain range in the heart of the Soviet Union.

How will U.S. arms deal affect Israeli stand?

By Larry Thorson

TEL AVIV (AP). — Following the U.S. Senate vote on the Mid-East warplanes package, attention is shifting to Israel's next move in the jockeying among Jerusalem, Washington and Cairo over Middle East peace prospects.

Israel's cabinet meets Sunday and American officials hope for a clear answer to one question: after a five-year interim period of limited self-rule for the West Bank and Gaza Strip, how does Israel intend to let the Palestinian Arabs help determine their own future?

U.S. President Jimmy Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance posed that question when Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan were in Washington two weeks ago, and the cabinet's response conceivably could entice Egyptian President Anwar Sadat back to the peace talks broken off in January.

The cabinet's agenda has been modified to include debate on the package of American warplanes for Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia, and observers wonder whether Israel's heated opposition to the deal will affect the cabinet's response on the future of the occupied territories.

Begin saw the American planes going to Saudi Arabia and Egypt as "definitely a negative development from the viewpoint of Israel's security" and said an effort was being made "to dictate, to force us into a peace from which it is not only difficult but impossible to protect the civilian population."

Defence Minister Ezer Weizman took a different view of the arms deal, saying "it will be possible to stand up to 60 F-15's," the number of sophisticated warplanes going to Saudi Arabia. He said Israel's problem was "more in the political sphere than in the strictly military sphere."

Cabinet response

The political response of the cabinet, thus, could be to stand pat on its offer of limited self-rule for the Palestinians and call upon Carter and Sadat to produce new evidence of the moderation Carter says he is encouraging among the Arabs.

A Jerusalem Post editorial said that since the 50 less sophisticated F-5E fighters for Egypt in particular were supposed to foster Egyptian moderation, "Israel should now be fully entitled to see the proof."

The cabinet's decision cannot be forecast accurately and indeed may be taken in secret and not published. It seems sure, however, that there will be debate on the worth of U.S. commitments to Israel's security.

While Carter asserted that the arms package "reaffirms our historic and unshakable commitment to the security of Israel," Jerusalem looks at the details and finds Washington lacking.

Begin said the United States made "an absolute and unconditional commitment" in September 1975 to sell F-16 warplanes to Israel and "there was no justification" for lumping the Israeli planes together with those for Saudi Arabia and Egypt, which he said "are in a state of war with Israel."

Israel is to receive 15 F-15's and 75 F-16's, and Carter has promised to offer 20 more F-15's to Israel in 1979. Even this, the Israelis say, leaves them far short of the 250 F-16's they originally hoped to receive complete with co-production rights.

2 more Helsinki group members sentenced to hard labour terms

Big assault feared at Narita opening

MOSCOW, May 19 (R). — Two members of a dissident "Helsinki" human rights group in the Soviet Republic of Georgia were sentenced today to three years hard labour and two more years exile, family sources said.

Writer Zviad Gamsakhurdia and musicologist Merab Kostava, both 39, were charged with anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda -- the offence for which Dr. Yuri Orlov was sentenced to 12 years labour camp and exile by a Moscow court yesterday.

The sources, telephoning from the Georgian capital Tbilisi, said the judge passed sentence today after hearing final speeches by the defence and prosecution. The prosecutor had demanded four years camp and three years exile for the two who had been held incommunicado for over a year.

Kostava, whose birthday was today, and Gamsakhurdia were members of a Georgian group set up by dissidents to monitor locally Soviet fulfilment of pledges on human rights at the 1975 Helsinki European Security Conference.

About 20 members of Helsinki groups in Moscow and four other Soviet republics are now either imprisoned, awaiting hearings or already sentenced.

No other details have emerged from the Tbilisi courtroom apart from the account given by Tass.

The Orlov trial, which has been condemned by the United States, France and Britain among other Western nations, was effectively closed to all but immediate family.

The United States is leading a chorus of complaints in the Western World.

The State Department, in a statement personally sanctioned by President Carter, said the verdict was a gross distortion of internationally-accepted standards on human rights.

The statement was one of the strongest condemnations of Soviet policy on human rights made by the Carter administration in the past year.

Police remember that another, much smaller, group vanished in March just before they mounted a guerrilla operation against the airport control tower, smashing equipment and forcing the postponement of an earlier planned opening.

Police checking radicals arriving at the airport for a giant rally tomorrow -- organisers predict 20,000 will attend -- said they had counted only a few chukaku.

The rally will be staged near the $2.6 billion airport, 60 kms. from Tokyo, which is surrounded by two fences, dry moats, and police supported by dogs, water cannons and armoured cars. Inside, a handful of officials will hold a small inauguration ceremony.

The organisers of the anti-airport forces, composed of leftist opponents of the government and local farmers who feel they have been robbed of their land for the airport, said the rally will march on Narita.

NARITA, Japan, May 19 (R). — More than 14,000 riot police guarded Tokyo's new airport tonight on the eve of its much-delayed scheduled opening after years of bloody clashes, amid fears of a spectacular attack by violent protesters.

Despite the big show of strength, at Narita airport, which has turned the site into a defensive fortress, airport and government officials were still worried about the likelihood of violence tomorrow.

They were asking themselves, where are the chukaku?

The chukaku (central core), white-bellied vanguard of the most violent anti-airport protesters, had disappeared and police feared they were planning some sort of dramatic assault on the airport to stop its opening and shame the government.

Kaunda winds up U.S. talks, pledges aid in solving African disputes

Spinks' drug charges dropped

ST. LOUIS, Missouri, May 19 (R). — Police have dropped drug possession charges against Leon Spinks, the 24-year-old boxer who dethroned Muhammad Ali as world heavyweight boxing champion.

Spinks was charged with possession of cocaine and marijuana on April 21 after police stopped him for a traffic violation. The drug charges were dropped yesterday after a grand jury refused to indict the boxer.

The World Boxing Association (WBA) heavyweight title holder then pleaded guilty to driving without a licence and paid a $50 fine.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (R). — Zambia President Kenneth Kaunda wound up two days of talks here with President Carter pledging increased aid and further efforts to solve the Rhodesian and Namibian disputes.

Today he heads for Atlanta, capital city of Mr. Carter's home state of Georgia, to receive the Martin Luther King peace prize from Coretta King, widow of the assassinated black civil rights leader.

A statement issued by the White House after the talks yesterday said Mr. Carter had assured Mr. Kaunda that the United States would continue its efforts to bring majority rule to Rhodesia and independence to Namibia (South West Africa).

It also said Mr. Carter had promised to seek congressional approval to increase U.S. economic aid to Zambia from $25 million to at least $100 million annually.

The Zambian president has been seeking international economic aid for his country which has been suffering because of a fall in the price of copper -- Zambia's major export -- on world markets.

After his talks with Mr. Carter yesterday, President Kaunda warned that Americans might find themselves fighting on the wrong side if a full-scale war broke out over Rhodesia.

Mr. Kaunda told a National Press Club luncheon that the dangers of external involvement increased the longer white Rhodesian leader Ian Smith remained in power.

"The risk of full-scale, worldwide war is too great to ignore, and Americans might find themselves fighting on the wrong side," he said.

U.S. opens first "surround" hall

Boettcher Concert Hall, America's newest and most unusual, is inaugurated by the Denver Symphony Orchestra. Part of the Performing Arts Centre under construction in the downtown section of the Colorado city, this is the first "surround" hall to be built in the United States. The 2,700 seats encircle the off-centre stage, which is set above a large open "moat". Other innovative features include 106 plastic reflector discs suspended from the ceiling and cantilevered terraces. The structure was designed by architects Hardy, Holzman, Pfeiffer Associates of New York, with acoustics by Christopher Jaffe. (IPS photo)

Guerrillas kill 2 Red Cross members

SALISBURY, May 19 (R). — Two Swiss members of the International Red Cross and an accompanying African have been killed by black nationalist guerrillas near the border with Mozambique, military headquarters here said today.

Their names were not immediately released. The killings were said to have taken place yesterday at Nyamaropa, near Inyanga, about 10 kms. from the frontier in an area heavily infiltrated by guerrillas.

"They were taken out and into a maize field where they were made to kneel down and were shot dead," a spokesman said.
